What:

A free and open to the public outdoor concert by Maddie Jay and the pH Collective overlooking Boston Harbor from The Green at Fan Pier, an open park space in the vibrant waterfront neighborhood.

The performance is part of the "Fan Pier Music on the Green" summer concert series, which brings live music to the waterfront on select dates throughout the summer and is part of Berklee College of Music's "Summer in the City" concert series, which offers live performances at more than 200 venues throughout Boston now through September.

Spectators are invited to bring picnics and blankets to The Green to enjoy Maddie's unique rap arrangements. They will also have the opportunity to purchase provisions, wine and beer from Strega Waterfront while they watch the band from the deck on The Green.

Who:

Maddie Jay and the pH Collective bring to the table a unique blend of acid jazz, old-school beats, and psychedelic girl rap. They serve up steaming plates of groovy original music sautéed with spicy synth lines, creamy vocal harmonies, and meaty bass fills. All music is composed by bassist and frontwoman Maddie Jay, and it's guaranteed to dish out something you have not heard before.

When:

Saturday, July 23, 2016
